Death's Visit to the Village.

They say that people live longer in the country than in the town, and, perhaps they ray a few short years; but be not deceived by of the Eternal is gone forth: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and it by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away." Ps. xe. 10. Neither town nor country can pre-ground. He went to the thatched cottage by the ash tree where sat old Roger Gough in his arm chair, with his brow wrinkled and his hair white as flax. Roger was taken with the cramp in the stomach, and soon ceased to breathe, "What man is he that liveth, and

The wheelwright's wife sat with her baby, her first born in her lap. It smiled as it lay asleep, and breathed softly. The mother went on mending stockings, every now and ular appearance; when he pared it, it was soft then easting a fond look at her little treasure. That day week its gentle spirit departed, leaving its fond parents half heart broken. How uncertain is human life! "It is even a vapor nearly the same effect that grease has on the that appeareth for a little time and then van- foot or a piece of timber. The drippings

"As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind size. passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place ones fall out, and their place is supplied by thereof shall know it no more." Pr. ciii. 15,

Butcher Huncocks was the strongest man His chest was broad, his arms were sinewy and strong, and his frame bulky and well knit together. 'As hearty as Hancocks? was a common adage. No matter; sickness soon and only 2 small ones remain, one at each robs the stoutest of his strength, and pulls and of the range. In the 5th year, the remaining small teeth are lost, and the whole front teeth are large. In the 6th year, they ward with lost and the strength with the str raged with heat and thirst, and the next his all begin to be worn, and in the 7th, or some teeth chattered with the cold. His neighbors earried him to his grave. "Lord make me know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is: that I may know how frail I am-Behold thou hast made my days as a hand breadth; and mine age is as nothing before thee; verily, man at his best state is altogether vanity." Ps. xxxix, 4, 5,

Death crossed the village in autumn. The orchard trees were bending beneath their food, the sickle was at work among the wheat and the seythe was sweeping down the bartey. Never was known a more abandant year. The loaded teams were seen in all directions,& the glenners were picking up the scattered ears from the stubble.Farmer!Bount was a wealthy man. He was in the field with the respers, when he suddenly fell to the ground. Some said he was suddenly struck by the sun, and others, that it was a fit of apoplexy; but whatever it was, Farmer Blount never spoke after. You may, perhaps have. seen his tomb by the stone wall of the church yard, with the iron palisades round it. Truly may each of us say, "There is but a step between me and death." I Sam, xxi, 3.

Widow Edwards lived in the shed at the back of the pound. It was a wretched habitation; but the poor cannot choose their dwelling places. The aged widow had wre-tled few and for between. Her son, who ought Ata Probate Court holden at the Probate Ofto have been a staff for her old age to re-t on, was at sea. He was roving and thoughtless; but there is a heartache in store for him on account of his aged mother. Death found the widow alone lying on her straw. No the widow alone lying on her straw. No New Hampshire, deceased, presents to the one was at hand to comfort her, or to close her Court here his petition in writing, setting forth the snow by here and there in heaps, for it and been shoveled away from in front of the cottages. Not a stone's throw from the finger post at the end of the village, dwelt Abel Fromme, the clerk's father. For years he had been afflicted, but his mind was stayed upon Christ the Rock of ages, and he loved to think old age; and as a shock of corn fully ripe for numbering, his heart had applied anto wisdom life. Death found him sitting up in his bed, vious to the time of with the Bible in his aged bands, and the last words that fakered from his lips were, "Lord, now lettest thy servant depart in peace according to thy word: for mine eyes have seen thy salvation." Luke ii. 59, 30. Thus died Abel Froome. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace." Ps. xxxvii, 37,

The habitation of Harry Tonks was in a wretched plight when Death crossed the threshold. Harry was an infidel, and scoffed at holy things. His days were mostly spent in idleness, and his nights in poaching, and in tippling at the Fighting Cocks. Often had Harry defied death at a distance, as a burbear; but when he came in reality, he trembled like a Child. Pain racked him, and poverty distressed him; but that was not all, for his conscience was at work within him, and his mind was disturbed, "The spirit of a man will sustain his infirmity; but a wounded spirit who can bear?" Prov. xviii. A1. It was a horrid sight to see Harry elenching his hands, tearing his clothes, and grashing his teeth in anguish, and quite as bad to hear the curses he uttered in his despair. He died as the wicked die-without joy, without hope,-"Driven from the light unto darkness, and chased out of the world." Job xvii. 18.

'Rend your heart and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God: for he is merciful and slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil." Joel ii.

If Death thus goes up and down, and across and around the village, at all seasons of the year; and if he takes away the old and the young, the feeble and the strong, the rich and the poor, the righteons and the wicked, how long will be pass by THEE? Is it thy prayer "Let me die the death of the righteous, and det my last end be like his." Numb. xviii. 10 -Is Christ thy hope, thy trust, thy salvation?

If so, thou mayest indeed rejoice, and say with exultation, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Ps. xxiii. 4.—Old Humphrey's Thoughts for the Thoughtful.

THE HORSE.

I will state a few things which I have learned, and they may be of benefit to your readers. A horse that is driven on hard roads is liable to get stiff in his joints. In 1833 I had an anvent the visits of Death.

Death came up the village. It was in the spring; the fresh leaves were budding forth, and the mare's legs with a tolerable and the snow drops were peeping out of the salt brine, which was done accordingly three times a day for at least one week, and once day for the balance of the journey. The stiffness disappeared in a few days, and I drove the mare 1,400 miles afterwards, and there was no more trouble on that account. What to breathe. "What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall be deliver his soul from the hand of the grave?" Ps. lxxxix, 48.

The deliver his soul was very brittle and hard, it would break out when a nail was put in, but it grew together at every shoeing. A blacksmith in New England remarked to me that her foot had a singand tough. I account for it in this way: salt attracts moisture from the atmosphere, which keeps the foot moist all the time; and salt has from salt on a floor, if continued long, cannot be got off; the wood becomes moist and tough The heavens were bright with sunbearos, and and so with a borse's foot. After washing the earth seemed to smile; the gardens were in their glory, and the merry lay makers were bottom, pour the hollow full of brine, hold it busy in the fields. The sexton's son had long for a few minutes to soak the bottom. The been ailing, and all agreed that he could nev- practice of rasping the foot all over to toughor struggle through the winter. #### AGEOFSHEEP.

The age of sheep may be known by examining the front teeth. They are 8 in number, and appear during the first year all of a small In the second year the two middle two new teeth; which are easily distinguished by being of a large size. In the 3d year two other small teeth, one from each side, drop in the parish; but he was no match for death! out and are replaced by two large ones, so that there are now four large teeth in the middle, and two pointed ones at each side. In the 4th year, the large teeth are 6 in number, times somer, some fall out or else are broken off. - Mountain Shepherd's Manual.

The Vegetable Pile Electuary, invented by Dr. A. Upham, a distinguished physician of N Y.City, is the only real successful remedy for that dangerous and distressing complaint, the Piles, ever affered to the American public.— Mark this: it is an internal remedy—not an ex-ternal application, and will cure any case of Piles, either bleeding or blind, internal or ex-ternal; and probably the only thing that will. There is no mistake about it. It is a positive cure-sperdy and permanent. It is also a convenient medicine to take, and improves the general licalth in a remarkable manner. REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE on the trial of Salamander Sales, at Vauxhall Gar.

den : The undersigned attended a trial by fire

The undersigned attended a trial by fire three iron safes, known as Gayler's, Righ and Wilder's (or Herring's) Salamander Safe on the morning of the 16th January, 1846.

The safes were placed in a furnace constructed of brick, about five feet high, and the same relative position. Each safe was camined, and believed to be in perfect order. A number of account books, were not in A number of account books were put in book case, and several papers in the drawers each safe, and the doors locked and the fac consisting of charcoal, pine and oak wood, rosin, was applied, ignited, and renewed (with

The fire was very intense, and was suffered to remain burning until the following mening, when the safes were removed, Gayler, safe was found to be in such order as to be unlocked, when the book case and contents me found to be in a good state of preservation.
